

AT LEAST FIVE

Now Under Surveillance of Federal Officers

MRS. CHADWICK NOT ALONE

Woman Was Nervous in Tombs Monday—Subpoena for Carnegie—The Day's Developments.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 12.—(Bulletin)—At least five persons in different parts of the country are under surveillance by the federal authorities in connection with the Chadwick affair. Mrs. Chadwick is not believed to have been alone in her transactions. Warrants may be issued for the arrests of the persons involved.

Mr. Carnegie Subpoenaed.
New York, Dec. 12.—(Bulletin)—Andrew Carnegie was today served with a subpoena to appear in Cleveland on Wednesday before the federal grand jury in the Chadwick case.

New York, Dec. 12.—U. S. Marshal Henkel today received a subpoena from the U. S. district attorney of Cleveland, which he was directed to serve at once upon Andrew Carnegie, who is wanted to testify before the grand jury in Cleveland in the case against Messrs. Beckwith, Spear and others who place such confidence in Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick's plausibility, et al.

In the district attorney's office, it was said that should Mr. Carnegie be served he will be compelled to go to Cleveland as a process of any kind issued by government authorities, legally authorized to issue such a mandate, and cannot be avoided.

* ADVOCATE'S CHADWICK NEWS *

* You are following the Chadwick case, of course. It is the biggest news story of years and has special interest in Newark where Mrs. Chadwick is known. The daily chapters in this remarkable case are telegraphed to the Advocate by the Scripps-McRae Press Association, supplemented by special correspondence. This is what the Chicago American has to say of the service:

* "The important developments from day to day in the startling case of Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick have been given to readers of the Chicago American invariably in advance of other Chicago papers. This complete and exclusive news service on the most sensational news story of the day is partly due to the splendid work of the Scripps-McRae Press association, which is one of the news carrying agencies contributing to the Chicago American service. The first news of the Newton suit for $190,000, the sensational entry of Andrew Carnegie's name into the case, the arrest of Mrs. Chadwick, the discovery that the $5,000,000 'securities' were worthless were all published by the Chicago American in advance of all other papers."

New York, Dec. 12.—Although the efforts of counsel to secure bail for her have so far ended in failure, Mrs. Chadwick told a keeper in prison this morning that she had great hopes of securing a bondsman today and thereby obtaining her freedom. Upon what she based her hopes for release she did not state.

Mrs. Chadwick slept well last night and as a result arose at 7 o'clock this morning feeling quite chipper. When she had completed breakfast she was handed a telegram from Paris, presumably from her husband. The contents of the cablegrams she refused to reveal. Mrs. Chadwick then began reading the morning newspapers and while reading one of them she had a severe attack of nervousness. The attack, it is believed, resulted from the reading of an interview with her husband in Paris, in which he said that he had not even the suggestion of knowledge concerning the allegation that her business dealings aggregate millions. He also declared that he was certain that his wife never knew Andrew Carnegie, and that she did not need money, as he had a good practice in Cleveland, and made a comfortable living.

After the attack of nervousness had partially worn off, Mrs. Chadwick showed a great deal of impatience because her maid had not arrived.

Geo. E. Ryall, the attorney who represents H. B. Newton of Boston, the original creditor of Mrs. Chadwick, called at the Tombs today in company with Philip Carpenter of counsel for Mrs. Chadwick. They went at once to Mrs. Chadwick's cell, where a lengthy conference was held. Mr. Ryall's visit to the Tombs was due to a telegram sent him by Mrs. Chadwick. U. S. Marshal Henkel is of the opinion that Mrs. Chadwick will communicate with him later in the day and inform him that she has definitely come to the conclusion that she will waive examination in New York and thus escape coming before Commissioner Shields here next Saturday. At the conclusion of the conference Mr. Ryall stated that as a result of his visit he has renewed hope of a settlement.

"If the money does not come from Mrs. Chadwick herself," he said, "it will come from some one who is interested in her." Attorney Powers saw Mrs. Chadwick this noon. Powers talked to the woman through the iron grating for nearly half an hour. Several times during the interview Attorney Carpenter, who remained in the corridor, was called by Powers into the consultation.

IN THE TOMBS

The Cleveland Woman Remains, Bail Not Being Seemed Advisable—Would Be Rearrested.

New York, Dec. 12.—From present indications it is extremely unlikely that any attempt will be made to obtain bail for Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, who has been in the Tombs since last Thursday night on a charge of aiding and abetting bank officials in the embezzlement of $12,500. She was held under $15,000 bail. A person who is in a position to know the various moves in the Chadwick case said: "Despite all reports to the contrary, no active efforts have been made to obtain bail for Mrs. Chadwick in this city. There are plenty of people here who would sign her bond if asked, but the fact is it is not deemed advisable for Mrs. Chadwick to leave the city prison at present. If she were released on bail, the government could demand 24 hours in which to examine her surety. Meanwhile the government attorneys could telegraph authorities, and before the 24 hours had expired could have additional charges sent here, so that it would be necessary to procure new bail."

DR. L. S. CHADWICK

Cassie's Husband in Paris is Interviewed by New York World—Says It's a Stunning Blow.

New York, Dec. 12.—The World says that Dr. Leroy S. Chadwick, husband of Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, was interviewed by its correspondent in a Paris hotel. The interview, according to the World, includes the following: "Did you leave America because you knew the transactions charged against your wife were about to be ventilated?" "No, I had not the slightest intimation that my wife had any such business connections," replied Mr. Chadwick. "Have you any idea why your wife used Andrew Carnegie's name instead of that of other immensely wealthy men, such as Rockefeller or Morgan? Does she know Mr. Carnegie?" "As far as I know she does not know the famous Carnegie, and has never met him. But I believe she simply negotiated paper which she believed to be good. All this is a stunning blow to me. I was absolutely without an inkling of such doings as my wife is accused of. She in no way needed money."

WOMAN'S HUSBAND

Said to Have Given Worthless Checks to Newton, But He Can't Be Prosecuted.

New York, Dec. 12.—Philip Carpenter, Mrs. Chadwick's counsel, was asked concerning the whereabouts of the husband of his client, but he declined to say. Mr. Carpenter also asked to be excused from discussing his future action relating to Mrs. Chadwick's troubles. A lawyer who has been connected with the recent financial difficulties of Mrs. Chadwick said: "Any person who says that Dr. Chadwick can be brought back to the United States against his will because he gave Herbert D. Newton checks which returned marked 'Without funds' knows nothing of the law. Had the doctor bought a coat and given a worthless check he could have been held for obtaining money under false pretenses, but in this case there was no value received. He is said to have given two checks aggregating $50,000 as a part payment of his wife's indebtedness. The checks were valueless, but no crime was committed, for Dr. Chadwick received nothing."

More Trouble for Cassie.

Boston, Dec. 12.—Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick may be indicted in Massachusetts. Percy W. Carver, counsel for Banker Newton, who loaned Mrs. Chadwick $190,000 today said such a course is possible. Other lawyers point out that the woman had apparently violated several sections of the state criminal code.

CARNEGIE'S CHILD

Mrs. Chadwick Claimed to Be Says Reynolds

TELLS OF WOMAN'S DOINGS

Creditors Likely to Realize Less Than 1-2 Mills on Dollar—Still in Prison.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 12.—Secretary Tri Reynolds of the Wade Park bank of this city declares that his implicit belief in the statements made to him by Mrs. Chadwick, in which she declared herself to be the daughter of Andrew Carnegie, was the impelling cause of his financial dealing with her. "She told me," said Mr. Reynolds, "that she was the illegitimate daughter of Andrew Carnegie, and I believed her. I never doubted her story until on the occasion of my last visit to New York, when Mr. Squire came to me and declared that all the securities she had given me as the notes of Andrew Carnegie were worthless. It was only then that I doubted her. Before that I had refused to say anything about her or her affairs, because I deemed it my duty to protect her in the story of her birth as she had given it to me. I never once doubted her until I was shown that the securities she gave me were worthless. After that, of course, I could not believe her any more. When she told me the story of being the daughter of Andrew Carnegie, her husband, Dr. Chadwick, was present, and he believed the story as I did. The stories of her giving large sums of money to her husband are false. He is now in Europe, and is penniless. The directors of the Wade Park bank have to a man determined to stand by Secretary Reynolds, and insist that he remain with the bank. He has offered to resign repeatedly during the past two weeks, but the directors have refused to accept the resignation and declare that he shall retain his position. Given to Grand Jury. Both the federal and state authorities have united in the determination to keep Mrs. Chadwick behind prison bars until she is brought before either the federal grand jury or the grand jury of this county to answer to the charges against her. The case of Mrs. Chadwick was today brought before the grand jury of Cuyahoga county. The investigation will extend only to the alleged forgeries of the Carnegie notes, and a report from the jury is expected no later than Tuesday. It is the opinion of some leading attorneys of Cleveland that a charge of forgery can not be made to hold in connection with these notes. They declare that it is not an act of forgery for one person to write the name of another, but that the offense lies in the attempt to negotiate such a signature for a specific value. This, they say, there is so far no evidence that Mrs. Chadwick has done. She has not sold or attempted to sell the notes for cash. She has not said that she would be glad to obtain money in exchange for them. According to an estimate of the estate of Mrs. Chadwick, creditors as a whole will receive about 1 1/2 mills on the dollar. What lends additional interest to this showing, from the creditors' standpoint, is that one man, Tri Reynolds, will receive the whole of the assets visible at the present time. There may be funds in reserve somewhere, as there may be additional creditors who have not yet announced that Mrs. Chadwick is indebted to them, but it is not expected by bankers and attorneys of this city, who have the greatest knowledge of her affairs, that any more large loans will be developed. Her Reputed Operations. The extent of her operations is now believed to be approximately as follows: Secured from Citizens' National bank of Oberlin and various sources in and about Lorain county, O., $500,000; borrowed from Herbert D. Newton, $190,000; borrowed from business men in Pittsburgh, $500,000. Total, $1,190,000. Against this stands security of known value of one note amounting to $1,800, which is held by Tri Reynolds. The amount of money received by Mrs. Chadwick in Pittsburgh may run as high as $800,000, but it is believed that a portion of this sum is a bonus promised by her for an original loan of at least $500,000. Her creditor there figures that she is indebted to him for the larger amount, while she has admitted that she owes $500,000. If her debt in this direction is $800,000, the probability in sight of the creditors is about 1-15 mills on the dollar. It is not believed by any of the attorneys in the case that the Carnegie securities will be of any account whatever. More than 2,000 skilled workmen have left the French silk factories of Roubaix and Turoing within a year, for the United States.

STOCKS LOWER

Another Sharp Decline in New York Monday

90,000 SHARES ARE HANDLED

Copper, Steel and Other Stocks Fell Many Points—Slump Has No Local Effect.

New York, Dec. 12.—As a result of the Lawson advertising the stock market went all to pieces this morning. Values tumbled, copper, steel and other stocks falling many points. More than 90,000 shares were handled this morning.

NO LOCAL EFFECT.

P. G. Miller, who conducts a stock exchange on the South Side, said that none of his customers would lose anything from the slump in New York. He stated that most of the men who dealt with him were afraid of copper and steel, and were at present letting it alone. Copper closed Saturday night at 71 1/2, opened this morning at 71 1/2 and by 2:30 had dropped to 67 1/4, a loss of four points. Though not so noticeable there was a general decline in the prices of speculative stocks.

"EVIL CONTROL"

Promoted Man to Strike the Fair Spiritualist

WOMAN WAS NEARLY KILLED

Coachman Hart of Troy Who Was Later Arrested Believed to be Insane.

Dayton, O., Dec. 2.—William Hart, a coachman of Troy, and a former resident of this city, committed a murderous assault at Tippecanoe last night upon Mrs. McKenzie, of this city. After stamping and beating his victim nearly to her death, Hart took the valise the woman carried and escaped from the scene. The robber boarded a north-bound car and went to Troy, but later came to this city, where he was arrested upon instructions of authorities in Troy, as he alighted from the car. Prisoner had the valise in his possession and when interviewed by Chief of Police Whitaker, admitted the crime and said that he intended to kill the woman. The valise contained $216 in cash, jewelry valued at $400, a half dozen bank books and some deeds. Hart is about 45 years old, and a widower. He and his daughter have resided at Troy for some time. He is a Spiritualist, and said that he was prompted to attack the woman by his "evil control." He struck Mrs. McKenzie on the head with a cane, inflicting a severe wound. After knocking her down he deliberately kicked her, and would have stamped her to death but for the interference of some men who grappled with the assailant, but from whom he escaped after getting possession of the valise. Mrs. McKenzie is also a Spiritualist, and a medium. Hart claimed that he was insanely jealous of the woman, and stated that when he was released from prison he would execute his intention. He is believed to be insane.

TREATY IS SIGNED

Washington, Dec. 12.—Secretary Hay and Ambassador Darnand this morning formally signed the arbitration treaty between Great Britain and the United States.

JURY TO TRY GILLESPIE

IS NOT YET COMPLETE

Rising Sun, Ind., Dec. 12.—Efforts were resumed this morning to secure a jury to try James Gillespie, for the alleged assassination of his two sisters, Elizabeth. Many talesmen were rejected on the ground of having formed opinions by reading the newspaper accounts and hearing the evidence at the former trial.

NAKED MANIAC

Swinging an Ax Entered a Grand Rapids Church

CONGREGATION QUICKLY FLED

Terrible Battle in Interior of the Pipe Organ During Which He Was Shot.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 2.—A maniac, clad only in a red undershirt, and swinging an ax above his head, suddenly appeared before the worshippers at the Fifth Reformed church Sunday and immediately began to demolish the pews, chandeliers and fixtures, in the meantime shouting at the top of his voice. A panic seized the congregation, who, in their mad efforts to escape, climbed over pews, dodged behind pillars and clogged the exits to get away. Police headquarters was notified, and Officers Stead, Slater and Spring soon arrived. At this time the maniac had smashed a score of pews and was demolishing the big pipe organ. Seeing the officers approaching he jumped upon the organ, and, still swinging his ax, fell inside and worked havoc on the interior of the big instrument. The sides of the organ were flying out in splinters when a riot call was sent in and Officer Slater tried to reach the crazy man. He was pulled inside the organ where the fellow caught the officer's hand in his teeth and a terrible struggle followed. Officer Spring, going to the rescue of Slater, was struck on the head by an ax and knocked unconscious, receiving a laceration six inches long on his head. Other officers tried to capture the maniac, and intending to disable him fired several shots, one of which lodged in the man's eye, ploughed through the top of his head and made his capture possible. With great difficulty his body was extricated from the wreck of the organ and he was taken to jail, where he recovered consciousness and tore the padding from his cell. It was necessary to chloroform him. Later it was learned that his name was James Delatto and that he was in the delirium of a fever, having escaped from his home on Granville street. He cannot recover.

Strike Settled.
Springfield, Ill., Dec. 12.—The strike of the miners at the Century Coal company's plant at Tower Hill, involving 300 men, has been settled by a committee consisting of state officials, the United Mine Workers of America and the coal company. The miners will return to work. The settlement is considered a victory for the miners, the operators agreeing to pay the Pana scale.

MOUNTED POLICE

Charged Demonstrators at Russian Capital

FIFTY PERSONS ARE INJURED

Social Democrats Attack the Government and Denounce the War With Japan.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 12.—(Bulletin)—The anti-war demonstrations in the streets of the capital were renewed today. Further disturbances have occurred and serious trouble is feared.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 12.—Social Democrats inaugurated an anti-government demonstration in the Nevsky prospect. Large numbers of students of both sexes engaged in the fray. Police and mounted gendarmes, who were hidden in the courtyard of the public buildings, emerged suddenly and charged the crowd at full gallop, driving them in headlong confusion and screaming with terror upon the sidewalks and into the adjacent streets. This led to serious encounters. Fifty persons were more or less seriously injured and many arrested. The authorities got wind of the big anti-government demonstration planned by the Social Democratic Labor party to demand an immediate end of the war and the convention of a national assembly, and in every morning paper, in black-faced type, was an explicit warning to the people at their peril to desist from congregating in the Nevsky Prospect, near the Kasan cathedral. At the same time extensive preparations were made to quell any disturbances. The newspaper warnings defeated the very object for which they were designed, attracting seemingly the whole population of this vast city to the broad thoroughfares. Toward 1 o'clock the workmen and students seemed to swarm toward the corner of the Hotel Europe, opposite the Kasan cathedral. The police recognized that the critical moment was approaching. Then, when there was not a single mounted policeman in sight, on the stroke of 1, from the heart of the thickly-wedged crowd a blood-red flag suddenly shot up. It was the signal. Other flags appeared in the crowd, waving frantically over heads, and they were greeted with a hoarse roar, "Down with autocracy." The students surged into the street singing the "Marseillaise." Dismounted police made a single attempt to force their way into the crowd, but the students and workmen, armed with sticks, stood close and beat back their assailants. Then, like a flash, from behind the Kasan cathedral came a squadron of gendarmes. The doors of adjoining courtyards were thrown back and battalions of police came out. A double squadron charged the flank of the demonstrators with drawn sabers. Five other squadrons encircled the mob, cutting through the fringe of spectators, who gladly scurried to cover. The main wedge of the demonstrators stood fast only a moment or two. There was a sharp rattle of cutlasses and sabers, though the wounds showed the police struck plainly with the flat of their sabers. The women were especially fierce in their resistance. Many were struck and trampled. The fray lasted about 10 minutes.

Following is the text of the proclamation of the Social Democratic Labor party calling the demonstration: "We have raised our voices calling for better things, but the government has turned a deaf ear to our cry. We from day to day draw out a laborious existence, a condition worse than convicts, while they convert millions into smoke and sacrifice thousands of workmen's lives under incompetent generals. We are shedding our blood for our torturers, while they are entering into a shameless bargain with wealthy landlords and zemstovists. Enough. We can not endure it longer. We must arise and boldly proclaim that we want an end of war and a government by representatives of the people."

FOSSIL KEIFER

Revived from an Era of Hatred, Comes Forth to Retard Progress.

With the grave clothes of more than twenty years of political oblivion clinging to him, General J. Warren Keifer, congressman-elect from the Seventh Ohio district, stalks forth into public life with a proposition calculated to arouse and inflame all the passions and animosities of sectional prejudice. With infinite capacity for meddling and mischief and none for statesmanship, this relic of by-gone day, this fossil of an era of hatred and of strife, comes to the front with a measure of retaliation and revenge calculated to retard to a degree untold the progress and prosperity of every section of this country. He comes with what he in his own diseased imagination, conceives to be a "mission." He comes bearing to the country a message of unwarranted interference in the domestic affairs of at least twelve of the states of this union. He would reduce their representation. Why? Simply because they have prescribed by amendments to their organic law certain qualifications necessary to the exercise of the elective franchise. Any proposition to reduce the representation of Rhode Island, a state in which thousands of otherwise well qualified citizens are denied the ballot simply because they do not happen to own a certain amount of property? Oh, no! Why? Simply because Rhode Island is a Republican state. Any proposition to reduce the representation of Massachusetts, or Connecticut, or any one of a half dozen other Republican states because the franchise is restricted by a property qualification? No! Nothing of the sort. The Democratic party and the south and they alone are to be made to feel the iron heel of Republican dominance, simply because Mr. Keifer thinks that his party having the power should use it to the utmost. And who, pray, is this torn and tattered knight of a new crusade, this exemplar of bournism, this reactionary, who struts upon the scene of action in the ceremonies of a dead and buried past? Who, pray, is this political Rip Van Winkle, whence did he come and what of his past? What choice spirits does he expect to invoke to his aid and bend to his purpose to perpetrate the outrage contemplated in his war upon the South?

J. Warren Keifer after a service of about five years in the House of Representatives during the late seventies became in December, 1881, the speaker of the House of the 47th Congress, in which position he made such a disastrous and, egregious failure that his party in his own district got so ashamed of him that it refused him a renomination in 1882, and he was summarily and incontinently kicked into private life. For 22 years J. Warren Keifer has been in political oblivion, but last summer by some most unfortunatous combination of circumstances he obtained a Congressional nomination and by virtue of the popularity of President Roosevelt was once more carried to the front of the political procession in the Republican ambulance. Keifer has never learned anything and has never forgotten anything since he was in Congress before. He left it flustered with and steeped in hatred of the South. He is a relic of the days of force bills, of thefts of the presidency and the cre-

Catarrh

Is a constitutional disease. It originates in a scrofulous condition of the blood and depends on that condition. It often causes headache and dizziness, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, affects the vocal organs, disturbs the stomach, and is always radically and permanently cured by the blood-purifying, alterative and tonic action of ation of electoral commissioner. He is a reminder, a fossil of the days of the blight of reconstruction. He inherits the antipathies and bitterness of the past without profiting by the facts of history and of progress. He would open all the sores of a day that have forever passed. He would humiliate and bar from participation in the affairs of this country States of the Union that are solving one of the most trying problems of modern times. With all the poison and the venom of his nature he comes forth from his hiding at a time when this country is at the threshold of some of the greatest achievements in all its history. He would strike at the South a blow which would in a measure untold nullify the benefits that would accrue from the construction of the Isthmian Canal. He would arouse hatreds and animosities that would retard for years to come immigration, education and commerce in the states of the South. He would set section against section and state against state. He would undo all that the late President McKinley accomplished toward making the country a unit, one in sentiment toward a common flag and a common and beneficent government.

One of the first problems that the Republican majority in the 59th Congress will have to deal with will be how to abolish Keifer.

THE OLD AND NEW WAY

Some Important Facts Which May Prove Helpful.

Thirty years ago old-fashioned cod liver oil had to be forced down a patient's throat. Invalids couldn't take it, and children wouldn't. But the doctors prescribed it, and it had to be taken by force. Yet it cured people where enough could be taken into the system, for it has ever been the greatest of all tissue builders and general reconstructors known to medicine. We are now anxious to have every one know that Vinol is a new form of this very old and valuable remedy, cod liver oil. It contains in a concentrated form all the medicinal elements of cod liver oil, actually taken from fresh cods' livers, but by a new process it is made without oil or grease, and it is as delicious to the taste as a fresh orange. Vinol does not upset the stomach like old fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions; its strengthening and healing properties are remarkable, and both doctors and patients are delighted with its action. Many wonderful cures right here in Newark have been effected by its use, and we ask all of our customers to try Vinol on our guarantee to return money every time it fails to make rich, red blood, increase the appetite, cure stomach troubles, give strength and renewed vitality to the aged, run down, tired and debilitated, or cure chronic colds, hacking coughs or bronchitis. SHELLING TOWN ARE THE JAPS

Now That Russian Ships are Disabled

JAPS SET ARSENAL AFIRE

And Also Damage Wireless Station on Golden Hill--Progress of the War.

Toyko, Dec. 12.—A dispatch from the Japanese commander of the land battery at Port Arthur today states that a further bombardment has disabled the Russian fleet in the harbor to such an extent that it is not necessary to further attack the vessel. The town of Port Arthur, he says, is now being shelled.

London, Dec. 12.—Baron Hayashi, the Japanese minister, today reports that Port Arthur besiegers in their bombardment yesterday did considerable damage to the wireless station on Golden Hill, and set the arsenal afire.

RUSSIANS FALL BACK

Three Days' Battle Reported Below Hun River—Heavy Losses on Both Sides.

Mukden, Dec. 12.—The Japanese opened a heavy fire on the Russian position east of the railroad at 4 a. m., but the Russians had searchlights in readiness and for the first time used them.—The army lights proved very effective, and a deadly rifle and artillery fire being concentrated upon the Japanese advance, they were driven back with heavy losses.

London, Dec. 12.—An unofficial report from Port Arthur, according to a Tokyo dispatch in the Daily Mail, says that Japanese torpedo-boat destroyers attacked the Russian battleship Sevastopol at the mouth of the harbor the night of Dec. 9, with what results is not known. The Telegraph's correspondent before Port Arthur reports under date of Dec. 9 that there were desperate encounters last week. The belligerents, the correspondent adds, mutually recognize the Red Cross and collect the dead and wounded during temporary suspensions of fighting. The Daily Telegraph's Tien Tsin correspondent learns from official Japanese sources that the Japanese casualties at Port Arthur the latter part of October were 3,000 killed and 10,000 wounded. The losses in more recent attacks, the correspondent says, were much heavier.

The same correspondent has heard that continual fighting is proceeding south of Mukden.

The correspondent at Shanghai of the Daily Telegraph in a dispatch dated Dec. 11 says that, according to Peking reports, the Russians have retreated to the south bank of the Hun river after 72 hours' fighting, with heavy losses. On the fourth day of the fighting, the correspondent says, the Japanese assumed the offensive. The Mukden station is reported to be in a wild state of confusion. The Daily Telegraph thinks the authenticity of the foregoing reports from Chinese sources of heavy fighting is very doubtful.

PORT ARTHUR FLEET

Still the Target for Jap Shells— Little Will Be Left of Russian Ships.

Tokyo, Dec. 12.—The Japanese continue to batter the Port Arthur fleet, and there is little ground for expecting that it will ever again engage the Japanese. The battleship Sevastopol continues at anchor outside, and possibly returns to harbor at night and anchors in the outer boom, which protects her from torpedo boats. The recent heavy weather has given added protection to the vessel. Naval experts are discarding the theory that the Russians themselves sank any of the ships. The fact that the vessels first showed lists while in exposed positions and the efforts made to save the Sevastopol are regarded as conclusive evidence against the theory of their being sunk by the Russians. The whereabouts of the torpedo-boat destroyers continues doubtful, but it is thought they are sheltering outside the harbor.

husband's side. She chose to brave all the dangers that might come and at once assumed charge of the ambulance service, which she directed with much efficiency. The soldiers came to regard her as a protector on whose life depended the fate of the besieged city. On the 2d of August, while caring for a wounded soldier, Mme. Stoessel was struck on the shoulder by a piece of shell which burst near her. The report that she had been wounded and was in danger of death cast a deep gloom over the garrison. What was the joy of the soldiers when five days later Mme. Stoessel left the hospital and made a round of the forts to reassure the soldiers of her safety! Many brave men wept, and some knelt and kissed the hem of her garment.

SOLDIERS WITH FANS.

Every Japanese Fighting Man on the Firing Line Has One.

Use of fans in Japan is not confined to the fair sex. The men of the mikado's kingdom are much given to yielding them, and even when they go to war they take them along. During the warm months of last summer it was no uncommon thing in Manchuria to see a company of soldiers squatting on the ground and fanning themselves during a lull in hostilities.

While the fun may give a touch of comic opera war to the scene, there is nothing comic about the terrible slaughter the Japanese have bravely and eagerly suffered, nor is there anything effeminate about the manner in which the little brown men have won victory from their big and powerful opponents.

SENATOR KNOX'S CREDENTIALS.

How Governor Pennypacker of Pennsylvania Amused the Senate. Representative Landis Declares His Solitary Cheers Re-elected Babcock to Congress—Tributes to Senator Hoar's Memory.

Governor Pennypacker recently enlivened the proceedings of the senate in a manner both quaint and original, says the Washington correspondent of the New York Times. The occasion was the swearing in of the two new senators, ex-Attorney General Knox, who fills the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Quay, and ex-Governor Murray Crane, who succeeds the late Senator Hoar.

Senator Lodge presented the credentials of his new colleague, and Senator Penrose performed a like ceremony for Mr. Knox. As the reading clerk read through the stately phrases of the credentials furnished for Mr. Knox there was a ripple of laughter through the hall. The credentials ended with the following sentence:

He is therefore to have and to hold the said office, together with all the rights, powers and privileges thereunto belonging or by law in any wise appertaining, until the next meeting of the legislature of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, if he shall so long behave himself well.

Across the senate chamber among the lawyers of the body there was a distinct smile of amusement, no doubt at the thought that the governor could have no power to revoke his act if its beneficiary should not "so long behave himself well." Then the two new senators were escorted to the desk by their colleagues, and President Frye administered the oath to them.

"I claim the credit of electing Representative Babcock to the next congress," said Representative Charles B. Landis the other day to the New York World's Washington representative. "I went up in Wisconsin when Speaker Cannon made his trip through Babcock's district. We had good crowds, but we couldn't find any Babcock enthusiasm. One night, after a particularly undemonstrative meeting, I thought I would warm things up and stepped out to the edge of the platform.

"Now, boys," I said, 'I propose three cheers for the noblest Roman of them all, Joseph W. Babcock. Hip, hip, hooray!'"

"Not a soul peeped but me. I started it off again. 'Hip, hip, hooray!' Not a sound but my own raucous cheer. I stuck it out, though, and gave the three cheers.

"Now, the normal Babcock majority is about 10,000, but old Bab got through this time by about 300, and if it hadn't been for my cheers I am sure he would have been beaten."

It was a pretty touch of sentiment by which the grandchildren of Thomas Corwin, the famous senator from Ohio, who stood out against the Mexican war with a heroism and eloquence and resoluteness akin to that of George F. Hoar against the Philippine policy, should have sent a bunch of white chrysanthemums from Cincinnati to be placed on the desk of the late senator at the opening of this year's session, says the Washington correspondent of the New York Post. They probably had in mind Senator Hoar's references to their distinguished grandfather and sought this occasion to express their recognition.

These have been sent, with other flowers, including some beautiful American Beauties, to Concord, to be placed on the senator's grave. No provisions have yet been made for the eulogies in the senate chamber, and it is desired to permit time to elapse for his associates to think out with some care what they want to say. Mr. Hoar's tributes to his associates, as one by one they fell in public life, were masterpieces of ripe scholarship and careful preparation.

Representative Dixon of Montana has been telling of the experience of a young eastern woman with one of his constituents, says the New York World's Washington representative.

She left the train at a way station in eastern Montana one afternoon and asked the only man in sight how she could get to her destination, far out in the country. "You'll have to wait for the stage in the morning," said the man. "You can't get any rig here."

"But where am I to stop?" inquired the young lady. "There's nothing here but the station, and I can't sleep on the floor."

"Guess you'll have to bunk with the station agent."

"Sir," she exclaimed, "I am a lady!"

"So's the station agent," said the man.

The Same Old Joke.

Washington C. H., Dec. 12.—There is a very interesting kindergarden in this city. Recently the little tots were taken to the country. The next day the teacher asked each one of the pupils to do something which chickens do. Some of them crowded, others cackled and some tried to fly. Little Johnny Griffith was stooping down in the corner, and was apparently taking no interest in the program. "Johnnie, can't you do something that a chicken does?" asked the teacher.

"Hush, I am trying to lay an egg," was Johnnie's answer. It was satisfactory.

Frank Nowlin Surrenders to Police and Will Be Prosecuted on Charge of Bigamy.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—Frank Nowlin, a well-to-do painter from Cincinnati, surrendered himself to the police, admitting that he was guilty of bigamy and that the Ohio police were looking for him. According to his story he married Miss Alice Mangus in Ohio nearly 30 years ago. After living together for 10 years Nowlin left her and came to Chicago. Mrs. Nowlin followed him here several months later and then Nowlin returned to Cincinnati, where he married Miss Mary Moore. The couple separated several years ago. Nowlin says he is tired of living a dual life and wants to go back to Cincinnati and stand trial on a charge of bigamy.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SALAD.

The Japanese Recipe as Described by Prince Fushimi.

As a result of the visit of Prince Fushimi of Japan to America "chrysanthemum salad" may soon be a favorite item on the menu cards of up to date cafes, says a Washington dispatch to the New York Tribune. The prince gave the recipe to Colonel Thomas H. Symons of the army one day while they were riding around Washington viewing the sights.

"The prince was greatly pleased," said Colonel Symons, "to see the profusion of chrysanthemums that greeted him wherever he went. He was also amazed at the perfection to which the American florists have brought the stately flower. During one of our rides I was surprised and somewhat shocked to hear the prince say that the big blooms form an article of diet in Japan. I had always believed that the chrysanthemum was a sacred flower in the mikado's kingdom."

"The method of preparing the flowers for the table, the prince said, was as follows: First immerse the blooms in boiling water for from five to six minutes. Then take them out of the hot water and plunge them in cold. After being thoroughly chilled the petals are pulled off and are seasoned to taste with oil, vinegar, pepper and salt. This, the prince said, was a favorite salad in his country with all classes. Not only are the fresh flowers used that way, the prince went on to say, but they are also dried for winter use. Before drying the petals are plucked, and when the housewife wishes to use them they are soaked in water until they expand to their original size. Then they are treated with the boiling and cold water baths as the fresh flowers. The prince said that as a general thing only the white and yellow chrysanthemums are used in the preparation of salads in Japan."

DAN LENO'S BENEVOLENCE.

How the British Music Hall Comedian Astonished a Minstrel.

"M. A. P." tells these among other stories about the late Dan Leno, London's favorite music hall comedian:

One evening Leno, walking along the Strand, in London, stopped in front of a street musician. "What are you doing singing in the streets?" said Leno. "You oughtn't to be doing that, you know." The bewildered minstrel could only stammer forth, "Well, guv'nor, I've got to do suthin' for a livin'."

"Nonsense," said Dan. "Here, take this," and he put a five pound note in the astonished man's hand. The man looked at it for one bewildering moment and then bolted as fast as his legs could carry him.

Recently he visited his club. Addressing an old waiter, he said, "Maurice, how long have you been working for this club?" "Ever since it was started, Mr. Leno." "And what was the biggest tip you ever received?" "Two sovereigns." "Well, my boy," said Leno, "I'll make that fellow look foolish. Here's a fiver for you. And, by the way, Maurice, what was the name of the fellow who gave you £2?" "Well, Mr. Leno," said Maurice, "it was yourself, sir."

FARMS FOR URBAN ITALIANS

Plan of Baron des Planches to Benefit His Fellow Countrymen.

A step toward the solution of the "Italian problem" is to be made within a few months by Baron Mayor des Planches, the Italian ambassador, says a special dispatch from Washington to the New York Times. Soon after congress adjourns he is to make a trip through Florida, Louisiana and Texas with a view to investigating the practicability of dispersing city Italians into rural communities.

The baron has made a study of Italian conditions in New York and believes that the better classes there are handicapped by the presence of a lawless element. He finds that the latter are greatly in the minority, but are numerous enough to injure the prospects of their industrious and law-abiding compatriots.

In the south, where the problem of improving industrial conditions and getting reliable labor to replace the shiftless negro kind is pressing, there is a desire to get Italians of the better class, and some railroads whose lines operate in southern states propose to furnish tracts of land to Italian farmers at reasonable rates and enable them to build cottages, to be paid for on easy terms.

Roof Squash Court For a Millionaire.

Frank Gould has adopted the strenuous life. For daily exercise the young millionaire will build a fireproof squash court on the roof of his house at 524 Fifth avenue, New York. It will be thirty-six feet long, eighteen feet wide and twenty-three feet high, with walls of terra cotta and a peaked skylight of white glass, says the New York World. The facades will be of copper and crimped ornamental iron. Swing windows of wire netting will lighten the sides. The play floor and walls will be of maple. Electric lights will permit the court to be used at night. The cost is estimated at $7,000 by a firm of architects who recently filed plans.

A Christmas Gift.

Electricity has been put to many uses for children's toys in the past seasons, but the novelty among the Christmas gifts for boys and girls this year is an electric bank. This can only be opened by means of an electric current introduced into the mechanism by means of a wire and plug leading from the ordinary electric light. With the plug and the wire in possession of his parents the average small boy, ingenious as he is, finds it impossible to extract any of the coins he has deposited in the bank.

THE TOURIST OVERCOAT

The Tourist Overcoat is a great favorite. If a coat can confer distinction on the wearer, a "Tourist" certainly does. It's a long, wide shouldered coat, loose fitting in the back, where it is confined by a belt. It is made from choice fabrics, some quite fancy; broken Plaid and Checks. It's not too heavy, as the fabric is of the weight used for suits. Some are single breasted, some double.

THE RAILWAYS

PLANS FOR A FINE NEW OFFICE BUILDING IN BALTIMORE.

Accident at Glencoe Tunnel Delays
Traffic—Budget of Local and General News.

The B. & O. railroad has established a mixed competition for the purpose of selecting an architect for the proposed new office building at Baltimore, Md. A committee, consisting of the president, three vice presidents and chief engineer, with Prof. William R. Ware as its advisor, will make the award, and six firms of architects have been selected, who will be paid for drawing designs for the building to be submitted in the competition, but about thirty will have an opportunity of drawing plans.

The general plan of the building provides for a structure of 155 by 165 feet and thirteen stories high. Each floor will have approximately 13,500 square feet of surface, making a building with a total floor space of nearly four acres.

The offices will be provided with all the latest improvements in modern office buildings. It is expected that the committee on award will begin its work about January 12.

Accident Delays Traffic.

Sunday night a journal on one of the cars of first B. & O. train No. 25, broke at the east end of Glencoe tunnel on the C. O. division, doing considerable damage. A portion of the tunnel was knocked down and traffic was delayed for several hours.

Struck By B. & O. Train.

Zanesville, O., Dec. 12.—Frederick Abele, aged 78, was struck by a B. & O. freight engine at the Pearl street crossing, Saturday afternoon, and it is feared the injuries will result fatally.

Engine Derailed.

Engine 930, on second B. & O. No. 34, was derailed about 9:30 o'clock on Sunday night, together with five gondolas at Bridgeville Tower, on the C. O. division. The wreck train was sent down and repaired the damage.

Jolly Bros. and the B. & O.

The supreme court has handed down a decision reversing the judgment of the circuit court in the suit of Jolly Bros. vs. the B. & O. railroad company, and demanded the case to the common pleas court for another trial. Jolly Bros. had a contract with the defendants in error to construct or improve a portion of the Lake Erie branch of the road north of Fredericktown. After working for a time it was discovered that it was impossible to take out the dirt with steam shovel and much of it had to be done by hand. Suit was brought for $46,747.28 with interest, claiming extras. The court of common pleas allowed a judgment for full amount and the circuit court affirming it after scaling it to $45,212.27. Now the supreme court passes it back for another hearing.

Proposed New Station.

"The prospects are excellent for a new depot for Zanesville to be built next year," said H. B. Dick, division engineer of the Baltimore & Ohio, to a Zanesville Signal reporter. In the list of improvements for 1905, which was made out by Mr. Dick and forwarded recently to the head officials of the road, was an urgent recommendation for a new depot for Zanesville, and although the recommendation has not yet been approved, it is thought that it will be.

Taffy In Engine Boilers.

Wheeling, W. Va., Dec. 12.—Twenty-five tons of New Orleans molasses were dumped into the railroad water station tank at Fair Point, Ohio, in mistake for water, Saturday, by a gang of Italian laborers. On account of drought the B. & O. railroad has been running water trains to keep the water station supplied. The water is hauled in oil tank cars, and a tank containing molasses got mixed up in the train. The Italians unloaded this molasses into the big tank at Fair Point.

The engineer of the pumping station did not discover the presence of the molasses for hours, and in the meantime several locomotives stopped and took on "water." None of them got very far away until the heat of their boilers began to make taffy out of the molasses and the engines were rendered useless. When the fires were let down the sweet and sticky mixture began to congeal.

Traffic between Wheeling and the Holloway terminal was handicapped until the mix-up was straightened out.

Loyal to Baltimore.

Oscar G. Murray, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company, seems loyal to his old home, Baltimore, and explains to the citizens of Pittsburgh why he declined the proposition advanced by the Merchants' and Manufacturers' association for the removal of the general offices of the Baltimore & Ohio to that point. Mr. Murray in his answer thanked the general manager of the association for the consideration and interest that Pittsburgh had shown in the road. He was fully alive to the importance of that city and its favorable situation as a traffic center, but at the same time he said it was impracticable to leave Baltimore. The company was desirous to co-operating to the fullest extent with the association and the citizens of Pittsburgh in development and advancement.

T. & O. C. Earnings.

The earnings of the Toledo & Ohio Central division of the Ohio Central lines for the first week in December were $74,306, an increase of $10,401, compared with the same week last year.

Local Railway Notes.

D. W. Douglass, a Baltimore & Ohio freight brakeman, in stepping from a caboose at Bore City, sprained the bottom of his foot. He thought nothing of the accident at the time, but a short while later it became so painful that he was unable to step with it. Dr. Holston of Zanesville, was notified, and when the train arrived in that city he met it at the depot and attended the injured man, who then came to Newark, where he resides.

FOOTBALL NOTES

The Sunday Columbus Dispatch prints the following interesting football gossip:

"With the exception of about three or four important eleven's the football captains for the next gridiron campaigns have all been selected and the Dispatch today prints the most complete list yet published of the men who will lead and their positions. Yale has yet to name her leader and a few important Western institutions have also been unable to get together to name a captain.

"There are some interesting bits to be gathered from a perusal of the list. Despite the fact that there are two half backs on a team and the chances therefore double for this position to lead in number of captains, still it is discovered that the tackles of the country will have the most to say next fall about the field movements of the eleven's.

Out of the half hundred and more institutions represented in this list 15 captains are tackles. Twelve are full backs and seven play at end, six at half backs and five at quarter and four each at guard and center. Hurley of Harvard, is the only one in the lot who has been re-elected and Tackle Craghead of the Massachusetts 'Aggies' is the only colored captain in the entire country. The list of leaders appears below:

Chapter Sixteenth "Santa Claus!"

CLAUS thought that none of the children would ever know where the toys came from which they found at their bedsides when they awakened the following morning. But kindly deeds are sure to bring fame, and fame has many wings to carry its tidings into far lands; so for miles and miles in every direction people were talking of Claus and his wonderful gifts to children. The sweet generosity of his work caused a few selfish folk to sneer, but even these were forced to admit their respect for a man so gentle natured that he loved to devote his life to pleasing the helpless little ones of his race.

Therefore the inhabitants of every city and village had been eagerly watching the coming of Claus, and remarkable stories of his beautiful playthings were told the children to keep them patient and contented.

When, on the morning following the first trip of Claus with his deer, the little ones came running to their parents with the pretty toys they had found, and asked from whence they came, there was but one reply to the question.

"The good Claus must have been here, my darlings, for his are the only toys in all the world!"

"But how did he get in?" asked the children.

At this the fathers shook their heads, being themselves unable to understand how Claus had gained admittance to their homes, but the mothers, watching the glad faces of their dear ones, whispered that the good Claus was no mortal man, but assuredly a Saint, and they piously blessed his name for the happiness he had bestowed upon their children.

"A Saint," said one, with bowed head, "has no need to unlock doors if it pleases him to enter our homes."

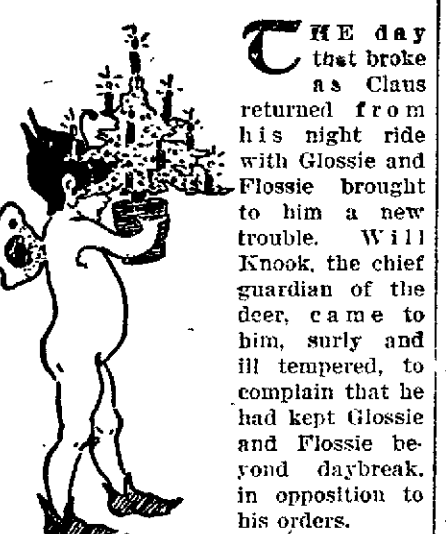

And afterward, when a child was naughty or disobedient, its mother would say:

"You must pray to the good Santa Claus for forgiveness. He does not like naughty children, and unless you repent he will bring you no more pretty toys."

But Santa Claus himself would not have approved this speech. He brought toys to the children because they were little and helpless and because he loved them. He knew that the best of children were sometimes naughty and that the naughty ones were often good. It is the way with children the world over, and he would not have changed their natures had he possessed the power to do so.

And that is how our Claus became Santa Claus. It is possible for any man, by good deeds, to enshrine himself as a Saint in the hearts of the people.

Chapter Seventeenth Christmas Eve

THE day that broke as Claus returned from his night ride with Glossie and Flossie brought to him a new trouble. Will Knook, the chief guardian of the deer, came to him, surly and ill tempered, to complain that he had kept Glossie and Flossie beyond daybreak, in opposition to his orders.

"Yet it could not have been very long after daybreak," said Claus.

"It was one minute after," answered Will Knook, "and that is as bad as one hour. I shall set the stinging gnats on Glossie and Flossie, and they will thus suffer terribly for their disobedience."

"Don't do that!" begged Claus. "It was my fault!"

But Will Knook would listen to no excuses and went away grumbling and growling in his ill natured way.

For this reason Claus entered the Forest to consult Nettle about rescuing the good deer from punishment. To his delight he found his old friend, the Master Woodsman, seated in the circle of Nymphs.

When I can save them," said the toy-maker, when he had finished the relation. "They were only one minute late, and they ran swifter than a bird flies to get home before daybreak."

Ak stroked his beard thoughtfully a moment and then sent for the Prince of the Knooks, who rules all his people in Burzee, and also for the Queen of the Fairies and the Prince of the Ryls.

When all had assembled Claus told his story again, at Ak's command, and then the Master addressed the Prince of the Knooks, saying:

"The good work that Claus is doing among mankind deserves the support of every honest immortal. Already he is called a Saint in some of the towns, and before long the name of Santa Claus will be lovingly known in every home that is blessed with children. Moreover, he is a son of our Forest, so we owe him our encouragement. You, Ruler of the Knooks, have known him these many years; am I not right in saying he deserves our friendship?"

The Prince, crooked and sour of visage, as all Knooks are, looked only upon the dead leaves at his feet and murmured, "You are the Master Woodsman of the World!"

Ak smiled, but continued, in soft tones, "It seems that the deer which are guarded by your people can be of great assistance to Claus, and as they seem willing to draw his sledge I beg that you will permit him to use their services whenever he pleases."

The Prince did not reply, but tapped the curled point of his sandal with the tip of his spear, as if in thought.

Then the Fairy Queen spoke to him in this way: "If you consent to Ak's request I will see that no harm comes to your deer while they are away from the Forest."

And the Prince of the Ryls added: "For my part I will allow every deer that assists Claus the privilege of eating my casa plants, which give strength, and my grapple plants, which give fleetness of foot, and my marbon plants, which give long life."

And the Queen of the Nymphs said, "The deer which draw the sledge of Claus will be permitted to bathe in the Forest pool of Nares, which will give them sleek coats and great beauty."

The Prince of the Knooks, hearing these promises, shifted uneasily on his seat, for in his heart he hated to refuse a request of his fellow immortals, although they were asking an unusual favor at his hands, and the Knooks are unaccustomed to granting favors of any kind. Finally he turned to his servants and said:

"Call Will Knook."

When surly Will came and heard the demands of the immortals he protested loudly against granting them.

"Deer are deer," said he, "and nothing but deer. Were they horses it would be right to harness them like horses. But no one harnesses deer, because they are free, wild creatures, owing no service of any sort to mankind. It would degrade my deer to labor for Claus, who is only a man in spite of the friendship lavished on him by the immortals."

"You have heard," said the Prince to Ak. "There is truth in what Will says."

"Call Glossie and Flossie," returned the Master.

The deer were brought to the conference and Ak asked them if they objected to drawing the sledge for Claus.

"No, indeed!" replied Glossie. "We enjoyed the trip very much."

"And we tried hard to get home by daybreak," added Flossie, "but were unfortunately a minute too late."

"A minute lost at daybreak doesn't matter," said Ak. "You are forgiven for that delay."

"Provided it does not happen again," said the Prince of the Knooks sternly. "And will you permit them to make another journey with me?" asked Claus.

The Prince reflected while he gazed at Will, who was scowling, and at the Master Woodsman, who was smiling.

Then he stood up and addressed the company as follows:

"Since you all urge me to grant the favor I will permit the deer to go with Claus once every year, on Christmas Eve, provided they always return to the Forest by daybreak. He may select any number he pleases, up to ten, to draw his sledge, and those shall be known among us as Reindeer, to distinguish them from the others. And they shall bathe in the Pool of Nares, and eat the casa and grapple, and the especial protection of the Fairy Queen. And now cease scowling, Will Knook, for my words shall be obeyed!"

He hobbled quickly away through the trees to avoid the thanks of Claus and the approval of the other immortals, and Will followed him.

But Ak was satisfied, knowing that he could rely on the promise of the Prince, however grudgingly given; and Glossie and Flossie ran home, kicking up their heels delightedly at every step.

"When is Christmas Eve?" Claus asked the Master.

"In about ten days," he replied.

"Then I cannot use the deer this year," said Claus thoughtfully, "for I shall not have time enough to make my sackful of toys."

"The shrewd Prince foresaw that," responded Ak, "and therefore named Christmas Eve as the day you might use the deer, knowing it would cause you to lose an entire year."

"If I only had the toys the Awgwas stole from me," said Claus sadly, "I could fill my sack for the children."

"Where are they?" asked the Master. "I do not know," replied Claus, "but the wicked Awgwas probably hid them in the mountains."

Ak turned to the Fairy Queen. "Can you find them?" he asked. "I will try," she replied brightly.

Then Claus went back to the Laughing Valley, to work as hard as he could, and a band of Fairies immediately flew to the mountain that had been haunted by the Awgwas and began a search for the stolen toys.

The Fairies, as we well know, possess wonderful powers, but the cunning Awgwas had hidden the toys in a deep cave and covered the opening with rocks, so no one could look in. Therefore all search for the missing playthings proved in vain for several days, and Claus, who sat at home waiting for news from the Fairies, almost despaired of getting the toys before Christmas Eve.

He worked hard every moment, but it took considerable time to carve out and to shape each toy and to paint it properly, so that on the morning before Christmas Eve only half of one small shelf above the window was filled with playthings ready for the children.

But on this morning the Fairies who were searching in the mountains had a new thought. They joined hands and moved in a straight line through the rocks that formed the mountain, beginning at the topmost peak and working downward, so that no spot could be missed by their bright eyes. And at last they discovered the cave where the toys had been heaped up by the wicked Awgwas.

It did not take them long to burst open the mouth of the cave, and then each one seized as many toys as he could carry, and they all flew to Claus and laid the treasure before him.

The good man was rejoiced to receive, just in the nick of time, such a store of playthings with which to load his sledge, and he sent word to Glossie and Flossie to be ready for the journey at nightfall.

With all his other labors he had managed to find time, since the last trip, to repair the harness and to strengthen his sledge, so that when the deer came to him at twilight he had no difficulty in harnessing them.

"We must go in another direction to-night," he told them, "where we shall find children I have never yet visited. And we must travel fast and work quickly, for my sack is full of toys and running over the brim!"

So, just as the moon arose, they dashed out of the Laughing Valley and across the plain and over the hills to the south. The air was sharp and frosty and the starlight touched the snowflakes and made them glitter like countless diamonds. The reindeer leaped onward with strong, steady bounds, and Claus' heart was so light and merry that he laughed and sang while the wind whistled past his ears:

"With a ho, ho, ho!
And a ha, ha, ha!
And a hee, hee, hee!
Now away we go,
O'er the frozen snow,
As merry as we can be!"

Jack Frost heard him and came racing up with his nippers, but when he saw it was Claus he laughed and turned away again.

The mother owls heard him as he passed near a wood and stuck their heads out of the hollow places in the tree trunks, but when they saw who it was they whispered to the owlets nestling near them that it was only Santa Claus carrying toys to the children.

Claus stopped at some of the scattered farmhouses and climbed down the chimneys to leave presents for the babies. Soon after he reached a village and worked merrily for an hour distributing playthings among the sleeping little ones. Then away again he went, singing his joyous carol:

"Now away we go,
O'er the frozen snow,
While the deer run swift and fleet
For to girls and boys
We carry the toys
That will fill their hearts with glee!"

The deer liked the sound of his deep bass voice and kept time to the song with their hoof beats on the hard snow, but soon they stopped at another chimney, and Santa Claus, with sparkling eyes and face brushed red by the wind, climbed down its smoky sides and left a present for every child the house contained.

It was a merry, happy night. Swiftly the deer ran, and busily their driver worked to scatter his gifts among the sleeping children.

But the sack was empty at last and the sledge headed homeward, and now again the race with daybreak began. Glossie and Flossie had no mind to be rebuked a second time for tardiness, so they fled with a swiftness that enabled them to pass the gale on which the Frost King rode and soon brought them to the Laughing Valley.

It is true that when Claus released his steeds from their harness the eastern sky was streaked with gray, but Glossie and Flossie were deep in the Forest before day fairly broke.

Claus was so wearied with his night's work that he threw himself upon his bed and fell into a deep slumber, and while he slept the Christmas sun appeared in the sky and shone upon hundreds of happy homes where the sound of childish laughter proclaimed that Santa Claus had made them a visit.

God bless him! It was his first Christmas Eve, and for hundreds of years since then he has nobly fulfilled his mission to bring happiness to the hearts of little children.

CHIEF OF BALTIC FLEET

Personality of Rojestvensky,
Russia's "Silent Admiral."

DEVOTED FOLLOWER OF THE SEA

Commander of the "Second Pacific Squadron" Has Spent His Whole Life in Naval Accomplishments—He Is Considered a Strict Disciplinarian and a Capable Organizer—Disliked by His Officers.

Never has an armada started for war with such an ominous presage of disaster as has descended upon Russia's Baltic squadron on its emergence into the open sea, says the London Chronicle. The man of the hour is emphatically its commander, Rear Admiral Z. P. Rojestvensky, who is now continuing his three months' voyage to the Pacific with death in his rear and the menace of irretrievable ruin in front.

Incensed as it is at the North sea tragedy, English public opinion is too just to arraign personally the Russian admiral before determining how far he and how far some of his reckless or "panicky" subordinates are responsible. The restraint is creditable and will certainly be justified. Rojestvensky is the last Russian on earth to light an imaginary danger by wreaking indiscriminate destruction. When the facts come out it will probably be found that certain Russian officers' nerves were too much for them, that they acted without orders and that so far from the firing beginning through the admiral's orders it ceased as soon as his flagship became aware of the facts.

For a few weeks to come Rojestvensky's name will be associated exclusively with the North sea blunder, but that is not his position in history. As commander in chief of what Russians denominate the "second Pacific squadron" his fortune is bound up with bloodier if less exceptional events. His heterogeneous fleet is Russia's last hope, and he himself is an essential part of that hope.

Rojestvensky is a comparatively young man. He was born near Moscow in 1848 and after getting the theoretical, impractical, education of a Russian naval officer blossomed out suddenly as a hero. For two unexampled feats of bravery in the war of 1877-78 he gained the St. George cross, he served in the Black and Baltic seas, gaining a high reputation as a seaman, and in 1903 abandoned seagoing for the post of chief of staff at the ministry of marine. In a year he made a reputation. He had fought well with his sword, but fought a much harder battle for efficiency. Had that battle been decided before February, 1904, Russia's naval disasters before Port Arthur would probably never have taken place.

Rojestvensky is a typical Russian and a typical naval officer. His men call him "Admiral Molotchaliv," the silent admiral, and tacturnity goes well with the reserved expression and manners of the Russian aristocrat. The naval man shows himself in his tastes, for he is devoted to the sea not merely as a profession, but also as a life passion. Rojestvensky is always at sea. When tied to the ministry of marine he spent his leisure navigating experimental craft and tiny sailing boats in the gulf of Finland. He has written of the sea, and it is said that his society friends dread him because he insists on talking of nothing but the sea. Such a man ought to prove a good sailor, and, in fact, as a sailor and navigator not even Makoroff surpassed him.

Rojestvensky is a stern disciplinarian, but he differs from all disciplinarians past and present. Blame in the form of a string of anathemas might be expected from a "silent admiral." Rojestvensky, however, is a humorist, and during the past few months he has been worrying his ill matched officers and men into efficiency by characteristic methods. Instead of storming and reprimanding, he issued periodically "general orders," holding up careless and ignorant officers to the derision of the fleet.

"The commander in chief of the second Pacific squadron," runs one of these, "has to inform the fleet that study was the purpose for which Cadets D. and F. were appointed to the cruiser Aurora. These young gentlemen have wrongly been given extensive leave, and the commander in chief now proposes to extend their holidays for such a lengthy period that they will be as weary of play as they now are of work." A whole series of similar orders was issued, with the result that shirkers were terrified into hard work and ignoramuses into acquiring knowledge.

Whether the admiral will prove as good in fighting as he has proved in organization and discipline remains to be seen. His opinions are definite enough. He is an enthusiastic believer in the big battleship, likening each armored vessel to a separate army corps, a unit in itself, which retains its value though the fleet of which it formed part may have been destroyed or dispersed. When St. Petersburg vacillated about the dispatch of the squadron on the ground that a fleet without torpedo boats and scouting ships was useless Rojestvensky replied that he wanted only battleships and armored cruisers. "A fleet gains in mobility by not being hampered with small craft," is one of his dicta. He declared that the Japanese successes at Port Arthur were not gained really by torpedo boats and destroyers, but by the battleships behind them. His whole conception of a naval battle is a fight between big ships until the bigger and more powerful destroy the smaller and weaker.

Among his officers the Russian admiral is not a favorite. They declare that they never know his mind and that he springs surprises of blame upon them without warning. Many an officer whose work has been inspected with after comment by the admiral has afterward found his name quoted in an ironical reprimand addressed to negligent officers generally. Rojestvensky has none of the bluff heartiness of manner associated usually with such genuine seamen. He is said never to express approval, and he always issues blame in such a way as to make the culprit feel it most. His men, however, like him. To them also he is reserved and apparently unapproachable. But he is a redresser of grievances and had he lived on the lower deck instead of in the admiral's stateroom would have made an excellent "sea lawyer." He examines the sailors' clothes, eats their food and tests their hammocks and if anything is wrong never ceases until he has got St. Petersburg to set it right. He never expresses comradeship with or affection for his men. They are there, he implies, to do their duty, and he looks after their welfare only because it facilitates the doing of duty.

Rojestvensky nevertheless has his human side. Neatness of person and irreproachable uniforms he regards almost as important as gunnery and seamanship. His own appearance is not distinguished, though his features are regular and he has a lifelong wart over the nose which is the subject of much joking among irreverent "mitch-men." The admiral, however, is invariably informed like an emperor, and in this condition he will grub in grimy staterooms and pick his way among greasy cases of beef for hours in the hope of discovering something wrong. He is intensely punctilious, and is responsible for the paraphrase of Bacon, "Manners make seamen." Another foible is his love of pretty surroundings. His office under the gilt spire of the St. Petersburg "admiralstvo" was adorned with photographs, mirrors, relics of old friendships and cozy furniture and resembled a lady's boudoir rather than a place of work. Apparently these harmless luxuries in no way demoralized his tough character, for his long swims and solitary cruises in single handed yachts are constantly referred to in the Russian press.

Rojestvensky did not want the command of the Baltic fleet, though, once appointed, he never wavered in his belief that it should be sent out. The terrible omen which has accompanied his departure has probably cost him in moral fighting power one of his best battleships. If he ever reaches the far east he will certainly do his best, and there is no living Russian sailor whose best is likely to be better.

THE KAISER A CRACK SHOT.

Sent Bullets Through Letters on a Sign and a Bear's Eye.

Kaiser Wilhelm's marksmanship in the royal preserves at Springe is astonishing sportsmen, says a Berlin cable dispatch to the New York World. Baron Heintze and the kaiser were waiting for a wild boar, 150 yards distant was a notice board, "This way to Drakenberg." The kaiser asked, "Which letter in Drakenberg shall I pierce?" "D," said Heintze. The kaiser fired. "Which next?" "K," said Heintze. Again his majesty fired. Both letters were shot clean through. "Here's the boar!" cried the kaiser. "Which eye, right or left?" "Left," said Heintze, amazed. The kaiser fired, shooting straight through the left eye. The letters on the signpost were two inches long. The aged prince regent of Bavaria is as great a nimrod as the kaiser. The other day in the boar park at Roibrunn, with two companions, he shot 600 pigs.

Princess Hatzfeldt's Jewel Toys.

Princess Hatzfeldt is back in London buying Christmas presents, largely taking the form of miniature jeweled animals, says a special cable dispatch to the New York World. A pendant is of an elephant of gray pearl, with a torchlike ruby at the end of its trunk. A cat formed of a single carseye stone, with emerald eyes and outstanding gold wire whiskers; narrowsettes of diamonds with eyes of yellow diamonds and single pink diamonds forming the nose, are some of the favorite specimens chosen, while fur is also especially among her gifts this year.

What Little Saul Got Christmas.

Us parents mostly think our own's The smartest children out! But widdler Shelton's little Saul Beats all I know about! He was like a pint of health, But strong in word and deed And heart and head and snap and spunk And allus in the lead.

Come honest by it, for his pa— Afore he passed away— He was a vagder. (Lord, I'd like To hear him preach today!) He led his flock; he led in prayer Per spread of peace—and when Naimin but war could spread it, he Was first to lead us there!

So little Saul has grit to take Things just as they occur, And Sater Shelton's proud of him, As he is proud of her!

And when she "got up"—jes' fer him And into the pines!— A Christmas tree, they ever one Was there but little Saul.

Pore little chap was sick in bed, Next morn, and Doc was there And said the children might fix past, But so right back to where The tree was, was the matter! room, And Saul jes' had and smiled— Ner couldn't nod nor wave his hand; It hurt so— Bless the child!

And so they left him there with Doc And warm fear of his ma's, Their sudden-like, high over all Their laughter and applause, They heard: "I don't care what you got On yer old Christmas tree, 'Cause I'm got somethin' you all hain't— 'Tis me, the pleaser!"

YALE'S TINY FRESHMAN.

Smallest Man in University Weighs Eighty-three Pounds.

The smallest freshman who ever came to Yale is now in the university, says a New Haven special dispatch to the New York World. His height is 4 feet 11 inches and his weight eighty-three pounds. This fact was revealed the other day when the statement of the measurements of the Yale students was announced. The authorities refused to give the name of the diminutive son of Eli, but say that except for his small stature his general development is normal.

Out of 400 men measured the average height was 5 feet 8.2 inches, and the tallest is 6 feet 3.6 inches in height. The total strength of back leg and forearm averages 2,329 pounds for the academic students and 2,917 pounds for the scientific students. There are 42.6 per cent of the academic students who smoke, and 13.9 per cent are unable to swim.

A small country hostelry near Boston, in Lincolnshire, can show a curious sight. The exterior of the house is covered with ivy. This has found its way through the bricks and invaded the interior of the taproom. The proprietress has now trained the ivy so that it has spread all around the room and the unusual sight can be witnessed of ivy growing inside a room.

Grip Quickly Knocked Out.

"Some weeks ago, during the severe winter weather, both my wife and myself contracted severe colds, which speedily developed into the worst kind of la grippe, with all its miserable symptoms," says Mr. J. S. Eggleston, of Maple Landing, Iowa. "Knees and joints aching, muscles sore, head stopped up, eyes and nose running, with alternate spells of chills and fever. We began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, adding the same with a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and by its liberal use soon completely knocked out the grip."

It is a good plan to take a dose of the Tablets when you have a cold. They promote a healthy action of the bowels, liver and kidneys which is always beneficial when the system is congested by a cold or attack of the grip. For sale by all druggists.

GRANVILLE NEWS

Granville, O., Dec. 12.—On both Saturday afternoon and evening the members of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity gave a reception to a large number of their friends at the Chapter House. In the afternoon the ladies of Newark and Granville were received and in the evening the young lady friends of the Chapter. The rooms were beautifully decorated with flowers, the decorations in the dining room being especially artistic. Delightful music was rendered during the reception by the Sargent, See and Dean Trio. The affair was a complete success and was most enjoyable.

Morris Richards, a young farmer residing a short distance north of Granville, was badly injured in a runaway accident last Saturday. The horses frightened at something alongside the road and ran away. Mr. Richards would have controlled the team had not one of the reins broken. When this occurred the horses suddenly swerved and Mr. Richards was thrown out of the wagon, sustaining a number of severe bruises.

Quite a number of Granville people are suffering with an asthmatic affection due to the dust caused by the prolonged dry weather. The man, woman or child who is without a cough or cold this season is decidedly an object of curiosity.

A number of the friends of James Williams surprised that gentleman by calling on him at his home east of the village on Friday night, to assist in celebrating the 25th anniversary of his birth. All present enjoyed the pleasure of the evening.

Miss Bess Willis of Washington C. H., had been visiting her old sisters here for a few days.

Miss Edith Mason of Delaware, who has been visiting friends here for the past week, returned home on Saturday after having had a most delightful time.

Maurice Andrews of Columbus, visited friends in the village over Sunday. The choice of voices for the Glee club has been made, and the long trip for the club will be made in the spring vacation, with Dayton as headquarters. The Dayton trip is the biggest thing ever attempted by the club. Enough dates have been guaranteed to insure its complete success. Other shorter trips will be made during the winter and spring terms on Fridays and Saturdays.

Granville, O., Dec. 12.—A union meeting of all the churches of the village was held at the Baptist church on Sunday evening, in the interest of local option. The meeting was addressed by Mr. Jesse Taylor, a prominent banker of Jamestown, Ohio, who was sent to Granville by the State Anti-Saloon League. Mr. Taylor addressed the meeting on the question of local option from a business man's standpoint. His address was able and convincing and created a very favorable impression. The citizens of Granville will vote on the question of local option under the Beal law on next Saturday, and a great deal of interest is manifested pro and con, upon the issue.

Transmuting Vegetables.

The discovery of a means of metamorphosing radishes into potatoes has been made in so solemn a place as the Academy of Sciences, Paris, says the St. James' Gazette. M. Mollard takes a very young radish, "pasteurizes" it in a certain way, and it grows up into a fine potato. More scientifically, the young radish is cultivated in a glass retort, after a process invented by Pasteur, in a concentrated solution of glucose. Starch then develops plentifully in the cells of the radish, which swells out, loses its pepperyness and acquires practically the consistency, flavor and especially the nutritive properties of the potato.

A Show of Sausages.

A sausage exhibition is to be held in Bern next spring. The Bern butchers have offered a prize for a popular sausage, which must be "nourishing, strengthening and cheap." It is stated that 1,755 varieties of sausage will be shown at the exhibition.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON

Washington, Dec. 12.—(Bulletin) The house committee of judiciary today reported unanimously in favor of the impeachment of Judge Charles Swaine of the Florida district. The report was submitted to the house today. It is claimed he made false statements about his traveling expenses.

Washington, Dec. 12.—Senator Stewart, of Nevada today, introduced a bill fixing the salaries as follows after March 4, 1909: President, $100,000; vice president and speaker of the house, each, $20,000; senators, representatives and delegates each $10,000.

Washington, Dec. 12.—No hope is held out in administration circles of a revival of the French-American reciprocity treaty, efforts to encourage which are being made by the American chamber of commerce of Paris, according to an interview with President Cachard of that body. The French treaty and a number of others have been pigeon-holed in the senate for some time, and there is no expectation that they will be seriously considered at this session of congress. Particular disappointment is felt over the failure of the senate to act on the French treaty, as that was regarded as decidedly favorable to American products. In the present temper of the senate it is known that the president will not make any decided effort to negotiate any reciprocity treaties, as he does not believe there is any chance of their ratification in the senate.

Week in the Senate.

Washington, Dec. 12.—The principal event scheduled for the senate during the present week is the taking of the vote on the Philippine civil government bill, which is set down for next Friday at 3 o'clock. Under the agreement to vote the bill remains the unfinished business of the senate until that date, and it will have preference over all other questions in the matter of debate each day after 2 o'clock. Many Democratic senators are opposed to the bill, but the best information obtainable is that there will be no general debate on the Philippine question, as they consider the passage of the bill a foregone conclusion. They will devote their efforts to securing a modification of some of the provisions which they regard as especially obnoxious, giving special attention to bond and Chinese immigration clauses. After the vote on the Philippine bill on Friday the senate will adjourn until the following Monday, and it is considered doubtful whether much more business of general importance will be then undertaken until after Christmas.

Swayne Case Up.

Washington, Dec. 12.—The house began the second week of the session with consideration of private pension bills, Monday having been made pension day. On Tuesday the resolution reported by the judiciary committee to impeach Charles Swayne, judge of the northern district of Florida, comes before the house as a special order, its consideration having been deferred by resolution at the last session to that day, and authority given the judiciary committee to take further testimony. All the evidence taken, including that heard since the last session, has been printed for the use of members of the house. A supplemental report has been submitted to the house by the judiciary committee advising the house of the additional testimony.

Leuben Given a Hearing.

The case of the State of Ohio vs. William Leuben was heard to the Probate court Monday afternoon on an application for a rehearing. Leuben was bound over to the Common Pleas court on a charge of grand larceny. Leuben claims that he is not guilty of the offense and asked the Probate court to grant him a rehearing. Frank A. Bolton, attorney for Leuben.

Case Decided.

Probate Judge Irvin has decided the case of Blanche Bowman against Edward Bowman, which was tried in the probate court several days ago. The judge decided and ordered that Edward Bowman should pay to his wife $15 each month for the period of one year, commencing on the day of the trial. The judge further decided that the allegations against Mrs. Bowman in the defendant's cross-petition are not true, and that his cross-petition be dismissed, and that he pay all the costs. The judge further decided that the petition of the plaintiff was not sustained by sufficient evidence, and that it be dismissed.
